

vi. Oils of Scorpions and of Rue, A. ʒi. Oil of Turpentine ʒi. mix them. It is an egrigious Medicament against the Colick, Stone, &c.

Salmon, § 1. It is a singular thing indeed for the named Intentions, and will not fail of answering expectation, so far as a Clyster can do: but if instead of the Linseed Oil ʒij. you substitute Rape-seed Oil ʒij. it would be much more specifick.

§ 2. Also adding to it Spirit of Wine ʒij. or iij. you will add to the Virtue of the Medicament, and make it more discutive.

VII. Enema Terebinthinatum, A Turpentine Clyster.

Bate. ] R̄ Decoctum Commune ʒxij. Venice Turpentine ʒss. Yolk of one Egg: Syrup of Violets ʒss. Diaphenicon ʒi. mix and make a Clyster. It is admirably good against the pain of the Stone.

Salmon. ] § 1. It is an excellent thing against the Colick and Wind in the Bowels: but the chief design or intention of it is against the Stone and Gravel, whether in the Reins or Bladder, for the easing of the pains thereof, it is truly a Specifick.

§ 2. You may repeat it

(if you see need) twice a day, till you see the desired effects.

VIII. Enema Vinosum, A Clyster of Wine.

Bate. ] R̄ Spanish Wine ʒxij. Oil of Aniseeds ʒss. red Sugar ʒij. mix and make a Clyster. It is good against the Tormina, or Gripping of the Guts.

Salmon ] § 1. To make it more absolute, you ought to add to it Camphir ʒss. which you may dissolve in the Oil of Aniseeds, and so mix it with the rest of the Ingredients.

§ 2. This as well nourishes a weak and consumptive Patient, as gives ease to one that is in pain: if the sick is in a Consumption, add the Yolk of one or two Eggs to it.

IX. Enema Urinosum, A Clyster of Urine.

Bate. ] R̄ Seeds of Rue, of Daucus, of Cumin, A. ʒij. Sena ʒi. Urine ʒss. boil to one half: strain, and add Species Hiera Simplex ʒij. Red Sugar ʒij. mix and make a Clyster. It is a good Hydragogue, and prevails against the Drop-sie.